

Lucile Parker Gallery

King & Queen by Thomas Brewer, collection William Carey University

The Lucile Parker Gallery is named for the late professor of art who established the William Carey Department of Art and whose watercolor works brought national acclaim to the university.

Since 1990, the gallery has hosted exhibits of local artwork and artists throughout the South.

The gallery serves a three-fold purpose:

- to give students the experience of viewing original works of art
- to support regional artists by showcasing their work to the community
- to honor the life and work of Miss Parker
